

Fennec Foxes Fit for the Desert

by Susan Yoder Ackerman
art by Diane Blasius

The red sun is sinking low over the Sahara Desert. In a dry, silent gully, shadows stretch across ripples of burning hot sand.

Suddenly there is a sharp bark. Two big, dark eyes peek out from a hole at the foot of a sand dune. Zerda, a little fennec fox, bounces out from her den.