I couldn't believe it.

Even after packing and saying goodbye to Dad, I couldn't believe I was on my way to the Tracy A. Fremont Girls Basketball Camp.

My school's sports programmes only started at junior high.

I didn't have a real team of my own, but I had learned basketball by playing pickup games.

And I was the best shooter in the whole neighbourhood.

When Dad convinced me to sign up for the big city-wide free throw contest, I never thought I'd win.

And I got the grand prize – a full scholarship to a real basketball camp.

I was going to have a real coach and a real team and—

Excuse me.
