

International Dispute Settlement

The background of the cover features a large, bright blue sky with wispy white clouds, framed by a dark, vertical rectangular border. Below the sky, there is a dark, reflective surface. On this surface, several black, modern-style chairs are arranged in a row, their forms reflected in the glossy floor.

J.G. Merrills
fifth edition

CAMBRIDGE

CAMBRIDGE

www.cambridge.org/9780521199094

This page intentionally left blank

International Dispute Settlement

A guide to the techniques and institutions used to solve international disputes, how they work and when they are used. Many, often topical examples place the theory of how things are supposed to work in the context of real-life events so that you can understand the strengths and weaknesses of different methods in practice. The fully updated edition of this successful textbook includes the most recent arbitrations, developments in the WTO and case law from the International Court of Justice.

J. G. Merrills has taught international law all over the world for more than forty years. He held visiting posts at the Universities of Auckland and Toronto, twice served as Dean of the Faculty of Law at Sheffield University and for eight years was Alternate Member of the UN Sub-Commission on Prevention of Discrimination and Protection of Minorities. He is the author of various books and journal articles on international law, and is a member of the American Society of International Law and of the British Institute of International and Comparative Law. In 2007 he was elected an Associate Member of the Institut de Droit International.

International Dispute Settlement

---

Fifth edition

J. G. MERRILLS

University of Sheffield

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge, New York, Melbourne, Madrid, Cape Town,
Singapore, São Paulo, Delhi, Tokyo, Mexico City

Cambridge University Press

The Edinburgh Building, Cambridge CB2 8RU, UK

Published in the United States of America by Cambridge University Press, New York

www.cambridge.org

Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9780521199094

© J. G. Merrills 2011

This publication is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press.

First published 2011

Printed in the United Kingdom at the University Press, Cambridge

A catalogue record for this publication is available from the British Library

Library of Congress Cataloguing in Publication data

Merrills, J. G.

International dispute settlement / J. G. Merrills. – 5th ed.
p. cm.

Includes bibliographical references and index.

ISBN 978-0-521-19909-4 (hardback)

1. Pacific settlement of international disputes. I. Title.

JZ6010.M47 2011

341.5'2 – dc22 2010051865

ISBN 978-0-521-19909-4 Hardback

ISBN 978-0-521-15339-3 Paperback

---

Cambridge University Press has no responsibility for the persistence or accuracy of URLs for external or third-party internet websites referred to in this publication, and does not guarantee that any content on such websites is,
or will remain, accurate or appropriate.

---

Contents

Preface	page ix
Table of cases	xi
Table of treaties and agreements	xvii
List of abbreviations	xxiv
List of websites	xxvi
1 Negotiation	1
Consultation	2
Forms of negotiation	8
Substantive aspects of negotiation	11
Negotiation and adjudication	16
Limitations of negotiation	21
2 Mediation	26
Mediators	27
Consent to mediation	29
Functions of mediation	33
The limits of mediation	37
3 Inquiry	41
The 1899 Hague Convention	41
The Dogger Bank inquiry	42
Inquiries under the 1907 Hague Convention	44
Treaty practice 1911–40	47
The Red Crusader inquiry	48
The Letelier and Moffitt case	51
The value of inquiry	53
4 Conciliation	58
The emergence of conciliation	58
The work of commissions of conciliation	60
The practice of conciliation	65
The place of conciliation in modern treaty law	69
Further developments	74
The significance of conciliation	79

5 Arbitration	83
Forms of arbitration	83
The selection of arbitrators	86
Terms of reference	89
Basis of the decision	94
Effect of the award	100
Private international arbitration	106
The utility of arbitration	111
6 The International Court I: organisation and procedure	116
Contentious jurisdiction	116
Jurisdictional disputes	119
Incidental jurisdiction	124
Advisory jurisdiction	132
Membership of the Court	134
Chambers	137
7 The International Court II: the work of the Court	142
The Court's decision	142
Extension of the Court's function	147
Legal and political disputes	152
The effect of judgments	156
The significance of the Court	161
8 The Law of the Sea Convention	167
The Convention and its system	167
The principle of compulsory settlement	169
Exceptions to the principle of compulsory settlement	172
Conciliation	174
Arbitration	176
Special arbitration	179
The International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea	181
The Sea-Bed Disputes Chamber	183
Inaugurating ITLOS	186
The significance of the Convention	189
9 International trade disputes	194
From GATT (1947) to the World Trade Organization	194
The Dispute Settlement Understanding	195
Consultations	197
Good offices, conciliation and mediation	199
Panel proceedings	201
Appellate review	205

Implementation of rulings and recommendations	210
Arbitration	213
The WTO system in context	215
10 The United Nations	219
The machinery of the Organization	219
The Security Council and General Assembly in action	221
The role of the Secretary-General	225
The political organs and the International Court	231
Peace-keeping operations	236
Action under Chapter VII	242
Are decisions of the political organs open to legal challenge?	247
The effectiveness of the United Nations	250
11 Regional organisations	257
The range of regional organisations	257
The role of regional organisations in disputes	264
Limitations of regional organisations	271
Regional organisations and adjudication	274
Regional organisations and the United Nations	279
12 Trends and prospects	284
Dispute settlement today	284
A political perspective	286
A legal perspective	290
Improving the capacity of political methods	295
Improving the capacity of legal methods	301
Conclusion	308
Appendices	310
A. Agreement between Argentina and the United Kingdom establishing an Interim Reciprocal Information and Consultation System, 1990	310
B. Report of the Commission of Inquiry into the Red Crusader Incident, 1962 (extract)	312
C. Conciliation Commission on the Continental Shelf Area between Iceland and Jan Mayen, May 1981	314
D. Arbitration Agreement between the United Kingdom and France, July 1975	315
E. Special Agreement for Submission to the International Court of Justice of the Differences Between the Republic of Hungary and the Slovak Republic Concerning the Gabčíkovo-Nagymaros Project (1993)	319
F. Optional Clause Declarations (Peru, Djibouti, Japan, Germany)	322

G. WTO: Rules of Conduct for the Understanding on Rules and Procedures Governing the Settlement of Disputes (extract)	325
H. Security Council Resolution 915, establishing UNASOG, May 1994	326
I. Terms of Reference of the Trust Fund for the International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea (2000)	328
J. Ruling Pertaining to the Differences between France and New Zealand Arising from the Rainbow Warrior Affair (extract)	330
K. CIS: Concept for Prevention and Settlement of Conflicts in the Territory of States Members of the Commonwealth of Independent States (1996)	334
Index	341

Preface

Since the fourth edition of this book was published in 2005 there have been several developments with a direct bearing on its subject. A new administration in the United States, the growing influence of China in the world and political developments in Africa and Europe all have a significant impact on the activity of both the United Nations and regional organisations. The World Trade Organization, already an established player in 2005, has maintained its prominence, and its arrangements for dispute settlement continue to be widely used. The complex system set up by the 1982 Law of the Sea Convention has been slowly consolidated as cases have been taken to the International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea or to arbitration, while the International Court of Justice is busier now than at any previous time in its history. It must, of course, also be noted that solutions to such long-standing international problems as Cyprus, Kashmir and Israel/Palestine seem as far away as ever, reminding us, yet again, of the distance to be travelled, if institutional provisions for dealing with the most serious disputes and situations are to be effective.

The aim of this new edition is to examine the techniques and institutions available to states for the peaceful settlement of disputes, taking full account of recent developments. Chapters 1 to 4 examine the so-called ‘diplomatic’ means of settlement: negotiation, where matters are entirely in the hands of the parties, then mediation, inquiry and conciliation, in each of which outside assistance is utilised. Chapters 5 to 7 deal with legal means, namely, arbitration and judicial settlement through the International Court of Justice, where the object is to provide a legally binding decision. To underline the interaction of legal and diplomatic means and to show how they are used in specific contexts, Chapter 8 reviews the arrangements for dispute settlement in the Law of the Sea Convention and Chapter 9 considers the provisions of the World Trade Organization’s remarkable Dispute Settlement Understanding. The final part of the book considers the role of political institutions, the United Nations (Chapter 10) and regional organisations (Chapter 11), while the final chapter reviews the current situation and offers some thoughts for the future.

Those familiar with the previous edition will find significant new material in almost every chapter, including references to recent arbitrations, to the developing practice of the International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea, the jurisprudence of the International Court of Justice and practice under the WTO system, as well as new political material relating to peace-keeping and other activities of regional organisations and the UN. In discussing the various techniques and institutions, my object has remained to explain what they are, how they work and when they are used. As before, I have sought to include enough references to the relevant literature to enable the reader to follow up any points of particular interest. With a similar objective I have retained and updated the appendices setting out extracts from some of the documents mentioned in the text.

For permission to quote the material in the appendices I am again grateful to the editors of the International Law Reports. My thanks are also due to Julie Prescott at the University of Sheffield for preparing the manuscript, to Raihanah Begum and Sinéad Moloney at Cambridge University Press, and to my wife, Dariel, whose encouragement, as always, was invaluable.

Table of cases

- Abyei Arbitration (2009), 106
- Aegean Sea Continental Shelf Case
Interim Protection (1976), 125, 222 n. 3, 276
Judgment (1978), 15, 20, 153, 160, 235
- Aerial Incident Case (1996), 161 n. 49
- Aerial Incident Case (2000), 120–2
- Air Transport Arbitrations (1983, 1975, 1978), 112
- Alabama Claims Case (1871/2), 86, 92, 95
- Åland Islands Inquiry (1921), 55
- Ambatielos Case (1953), 156
- AMINOIL Case (1982), 109–10
- ARAMCO Case (1958), 109
- Arbitral Award Case (1960), 103, 106, 115, 158, 265, 275
- Arbitral Award Case (1991), 104
- Armed Activities on the Territory of the Congo (DRC v. Rwanda) (2006), 17
- Armed Activities on the Territory of the Congo (DRC v. Uganda) (2005), 132, 144, 152
- Arrest Warrant Case (2002), 117, 146, 164 n. 55
- Article XXVIII Rights Case (1990), 214
- Asylum Case (1950), 163
- Avena Case
Interpretation (2009), 159
Merits (2004), 117
- Bank for International Settlements Case (2002/3), 108
- Barbados/Trinidad and Tobago Case (2006), 19 n. 35, 168 n. 4, 179
- Beagle Channel Award (1977), 27, 30–1, 39, 85, 91, 94, 106, 115
- Ben Bella Case (1958), 66, 68, 81
- Bering Sea Arbitration (1893), 98
- Bolivar Railway Company Claim (1903), 84
- Border and Transborder Armed Actions Case (1988), 17, 70 n. 31, 119 n. 11, 267 n. 33, 276–8
- BP v. Libya (1973), 96, 103, 105, 109
- Brazil – Tyres Case (2007), 208
- Brcko Arbitration (1999), 98, 111
- Buraimi Arbitration (1955), 105

- Carthage Case (1913), 44 n. 8
 Case No. A/18 (Iran–US Claims Tribunal, 1984), 94
 CERD Case (2008), 136
 Certain Criminal Proceedings in France Case (2002/3), 118 n. 8
 Chaco Inquiry (1929), 61, 65, 67–8, 81, 266
 Chaisiri Reefer 2 Case (2001), 189
 Channel Arbitration (1977/8), 86–7, 93–4, 100–1, 103, 111, 158, 315–19
 China – Intellectual Property Case (2009), 205
 Chorzów Factory Case (1927/8), 53
 Clipperton Island Case (1931), 84
 Construction of a Wall Advisory Opinion (2004), 134–5, 136 n. 37, 155 n. 33
 Copper Case (1987), 200
 Corfu Channel Case
     Merits (1949), 144, 224
 Denmark v. Turkey (2000), 71
 Denmark, France, the Netherlands, Norway and Sweden v. Turkey (1985), 71 n. 37
 Diplomatic Staff in Tehran Case (1980), 19, 153–4, 156, 160–1, 232–5, 288, 294
 Dogger Bank Inquiry (1905), 42–6, 48, 54, 57
 Dubai/Sharjah Boundary Arbitration (1981), 89 n. 25, 90 n. 27
 East African Community Case (1981), 64–70, 81–2
 East Timor Case (1995), 123
 EC – Bananas Case (1997), 209
 EC – Biotech Case (2006), 205
 EC – Hormones Case (1998), 209, 213
 ELSI (Elettronica Sicula SpA) Case (1989), 139–40
 Eritrea–Ethiopia Boundary Commission Case (2002), 94–5, 101, 265
 Eritrea–Ethiopia Claims Commission Cases (2003–9), 111, 265
 Eritrea/Yemen Arbitration (1998/9), 86, 91, 93, 95, 99, 105, 111
 Eurotunnel Case (2007), 108
 Expenses Case (1962), 249 n. 80
 Fisheries Jurisdiction Case (1998), 121
 Fisheries Jurisdiction Cases (1973/4), 23 n. 39, 26 n. 45, 119, 147, 149–51, 160, 290 n. 3
 Franco-Siamese Frontier Case (1947), 61–2, 65–8, 81
 Franco-Swiss Internment Case (1955), 63, 66, 68, 81
 Free Zones Arbitration (1933), 98–100
 Frontier Dispute Case (Benin/Niger) (2005), 139–40, 159
 Frontier Dispute Case (Burkina Faso/Mali)
     Judgment (1986), 139–40, 148, 150
     Nomination of Experts (1987), 158
     Provisional Measures (1986), 124–6
 Gabcikovo-Nagymaros Case (1997), 24 n. 43, 118, 142, 146, 159, 319–21

- Gasoline Standards Case (1996), 207–8
- Genocide Convention Case (Bosnia and Herzegovina v. Yugoslavia)
- Application for Revision (2003), 131, 304
- Counter-Claims Order (1997), 132
- Judgment (2007), 144, 304
- Preliminary Objections (1996), 120, 304
- Provisional measures (1993), 136 n. 61, 234, 248–9
- Genocide Convention Case (Croatia v. Serbia and Montenegro)
- Preliminary Objections (2008), 304
- Gorm and Svava Cases (1952), 62–3, 66, 68, 81
- Grimm v. Iran (1983), 94
- Gulf of Maine Case
- Constitution of Chamber (1982), 137–8, 182
- Judgment (1984), 21, 137–41, 149–51, 153, 158
- Guyana/Suriname Case (2007), 179
- Haji-Bagherpour v. United States (1983), 93
- Haya de la Torre Case (1951), 163
- Heathrow Airport Arbitration (1992/3), 86, 90, 97, 112
- Interhandel Case (1959), 80
- Iran–United States Claims Tribunal
- Jurisdiction Decision (1981), 94
- Iron Rhine Railway Arbitration
- Award (2005), 86
- Interpretation (2005), 101
- Island of Palmas Case (1928), 85
- Italian Property Tax Case (1956), 63, 66, 68, 81
- Jan Mayen Conciliation (1981), 65–7, 70, 81–2, 191, 314–15
- Japan – Laver Case (2006), 205
- Japanese Loan Cases (1955, 1960), 67–8, 81
- Kasikili/Sedudu Island Case (1999), 118, 148
- KE 007 Inquiry (1983), 55–7, 289
- Kosovo Case (2010), 225
- LaGrand Case (2001), 126 n. 31, 146
- Lake Lanoux Arbitration (1957), 4, 8, 9, 12, 87, 111
- Land and Maritime Boundary between Cameroon and Nigeria
- Application to Intervene (1999), 129 n. 28
- Counter-Claims Order (1999), 132
- Merits (2002), 132, 157 n. 37
- Preliminary Objections (1998), 278
- Provisional Measures (1996), 227 n. 20
- Request for Interpretation (1999), 130, 131 n. 43
- Land Reclamation Case
- Award (2005), 4, 18, 19, 179
- Provisional Measures (2003), 118 n. 55

-
- Land, Island and Maritime Frontier Case
 Application for Revision (2003), 131, 138–9
 Application to Intervene (1990), 129, 141 n. 75, 295
 Composition of Chamber (1989), 138
 Merits (1992), 139–40
- Legality of Use of Force Cases
 Preliminary Objections (2004), 304
 Provisional Measures (1999), 125
- Letelier and Moffitt Case (1992), 51–4
- LIAMCO Case (1977), 109 n. 75
- Libya–Malta Continental Shelf Case
 Application to Intervene (1984), 128–9
 Merits (1985), 130 n. 39, 141, 157, 228
- Ligitan and Sipadan Case
 Application to Intervene (2001), 129 n. 28, 130
- Lockerbie Cases
 Discontinuation (2003), 161 n. 49, 248
 Preliminary Objections (1998), 17, 247–9
 Provisional Measures (1992), 247–8
- Manouba Case (1913), 44 n. 8
- Maritime Delimitation and Territorial Questions Case (Qatar and Bahrain)
 Judgment (2001), 143
 Jurisdiction and Admissibility (1994), 16, 120
- Maritime Delimitation Case (Guinea and Guinea-Bissau) (1985), 86–7, 90, 97 n. 45, 102
- Maritime Delimitation Case (Guinea-Bissau and Senegal) (1989), 86, 104
- Maritime Delimitation Case (1995), 161 n. 49
- Maritime Delimitation in the Black Sea Case (2009), 136, 151 n. 27
- Mexico – Taxes Case (2006), 210
- Military and Paramilitary Activities in and against Nicaragua Case, see Nicaragua Case
- Minquiers and Ecrehos Case (1953), 157
- Monetary Gold Arbitration (1953), 85
- Monetary Gold Case (1954), 123, 295
- Mosul Inquiry (1925), 55
- MOX Plant Case
 Provisional Measures (2001/3), 18, 179, 188 n. 55, 306 n. 39
 Suspension of Proceedings (2003), 113, 179, 307 n. 42
 Termination of Proceedings (2008), 179
- MV Saiga No. 2 Case
 Judgment (1999), 178, 188
 Provisional Measures (1998), 188
- Namibia Case (1971), 135, 136 n. 37, 137, 224, 249 n. 80

Nicaragua Case

Jurisdiction and Admissibility (1984), 121–3, 154–5, 234, 276–7, 294–5

Merits (1986), 119, 143, 152, 156, 160–1, 163, 221–3

Provisional Measures (1984), 125–6, 276

North Atlantic Coast Fisheries Arbitration (1910), 98

North Sea Continental Shelf Cases (1969), 26 n. 44, 151, 156–7

Northern Cameroons Case (1963), 11, 163

Norwegian Loans Case (1957), 120

Nuclear Tests Cases (1974), 164

Nuclear Tests II Case (1995), 164

Nuclear Weapons Advisory Opinion (1996), 133, 225

Oil Platforms Case

Counter-Claims Order (1998), 132

Judgment (2003), 132, 143

Preliminary Objection (1996), 120

OSPAR (Article 9) Arbitration (2003), 86, 95, 104, 112, 179 n. 32, 306 n. 40

Palena Case (1966), 85, 111

Passage through the Great Belt Case (1991), 127, 161 n. 49

Peace Treaties Case (1950), 88–9, 103, 133, 224

Phosphate Lands in Nauru Case (1992), 123, 161 n. 49

Pulp Mills on the River Uruguay Case

Judgment (2010), 5

Provisional Measures (2006, 2007), 126

Qatar/Bahrain Case, see Maritime Delimitation and Territorial Questions

Case (Qatar and Bahrain)

Rainbow Warrior Case (1986), 85–91, 99–101, 114, 228–9, 330–4

Rainbow Warrior II Case (1990), 102

Rann of Kutch Arbitration (1968), 37–8, 88, 94, 96, 111

Red Crusader Inquiry (1962), 48–54, 181, 312–14

Reparation for Injuries Case (1949), 223 n. 7

Rhine Chlorides Case (2004), 112

Right of Passage Case (1957), 119

Roula Case (1956), 81

Saghi v. Iran (1993), 94 n. 36

Saint Pierre and Miquelon Case (1992), 93, 111

Sapphire Case (1963), 109

South West Africa Cases (1962), 10, 17

Southern Bluefin Tuna Case

Jurisdiction and Admissibility (2000), 113, 169 n. 6, 178, 306

Provisional Measures (1999), 18, 188 n. 55

Sovereignty over Pedra Branca Case (2008), 118

Swordfish Case (2000), 178, 188, 306 n. 41

Taba Arbitration (1988), 70, 86, 92, 94, 101, 111

Tavignano Inquiry (1912), 44–6, 48, 54

- Temple of Preah Vihear Case (1961), 122, 160
- Territorial Dispute (Libyan Arab Jamahiriya/Chad) (1994), 158 n. 39, 238, 302
- Tiger Inquiry (1918), 45–7
- Tinoco Arbitration (1923), 85
- TOPCO Case (1977), 109
- Trail Smelter Arbitration (1938/41), 95–6, 103
- Tubantia Inquiry (1922), 46–7, 50
- Tunisia–Libya Continental Shelf Case
- Application to Intervene (1981), 127–8
- Judgment (1982), 92 n. 31, 140, 149, 151, 157, 159
- Revision and Interpretation (1985), 130–1
- UNESCO–France Arbitration (2003), 307 n. 44
- United Nations Headquarters Agreement Case (1988), 156
- United States v. Iran (2000), 114 n. 93
- US – Continued Suspension Case (2008), 209
- US – Gambling Case (2005), 208
- US– Shrimp Case (1998), 209
- US– Stainless Steel (Mexico) Case (2008), 209
- US – Upland Cotton (Article 21.5) Case (2008), 209
- Venezuela–British Guiana Boundary Case (1899), 105, 115
- Vitianu Case (1949), 81
- Volga Case (2002), 188 n. 54
- Western Sahara Case (1975), 133, 137, 145, 163, 224
- Wet Salted Cod Case (1988), 200
- WHO Regional Headquarters Case (1980), 133, 156 n. 35
- Youmans Claim (1926), 84
- Young Loan Arbitration (1980), 112 n. 84

Table of treaties and agreements

1794	Jay Treaty, 84
1814	Treaty of Ghent, 84
1866	Treaties of Bayonne, 8
1872	Arbitration Agreement concerning Claims to Delagoa Bay, 98
1894	Gamez-Bonilla Treaty, 103
1899	Hague Convention for the Pacific Settlement of International Disputes, 41–4, 85, 90
1902	General Treaty of Arbitration (Argentina–Chile), 84
1904	Declaration of St Petersburg, 43 n. 4
1907	Arbitration Agreement (Colombia–Ecuador), 98 Hague Convention for the Pacific Settlement of International Disputes, 44–8, 50, 53–4, 57, 90
1911	Taft (Knox) Treaties of Arbitration, 47–8
1913–40	Bryan Treaties, 48, 51, 60, 66
1914	Bryan–Suárez Mujica Treaty (Chile–United States), 52–3
1915	ABC Treaty, 48
1919	Covenant of the League of Nations, 279
1919	Mandate for South West Africa, 10, 11 Treaty of Conciliation (Brazil–Great Britain), 48 Treaty of Conciliation (Chile–Great Britain), 48
1920	Treaty of Conciliation (Chile–Sweden), 58
1921	Treaty of Arbitration and Conciliation (Germany–Switzerland), 59
1923	Gondra Treaty, 48, 60–1 Treaty of Washington, 60
1924	Treaty of Conciliation and Judicial Settlement (Italy–Switzerland), 63
1925	Locarno Treaties, 59 Treaty of Conciliation (France–Switzerland), 59, 60, 63, 70
1927	Treaty of Conciliation, Judicial Settlement and Arbitration (Belgium–Denmark), 62
1928	General Act for the Pacific Settlement of International Disputes, 59, 60, 80, 89, 117, 122
1929	Inter-American General Convention of Conciliation, 60 Treaty of Conciliation (Czechoslovakia, Rumania, Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes), 60 Protocol establishing the Chaco Commission, 61

- 1933      Saavedra Lamas Agreement, 60
             Treaty of Conciliation (Brazil–Poland), 80 n. 64
- 1935      Arbitration Agreement concerning the Trail Smelter
             Dispute, 95–6
- 1938      Munich Agreement, 36
- 1944      Chicago Convention on Civil Aviation, 56
- 1945      Charter of the United Nations
             Art. 1, 219
             Art. 2(3), 1, 2, 168, 220
             Art. 2(7), 221
             Arts. 10–14, 221
             Art. 10, 221
             Art. 11(2), 221, 224
             Art. 11(3), 220
             Art. 12, 233
             Art. 12(1), 221, 235
             Art. 14, 221
             Art. 24, 231
             Art. 25, 234, 247
             Chapter VI, 220, 243, 296
             Art. 33, 2, 20, 25, 279
             Art. 33(1), 220–1
             Art. 33(2), 221
             Art. 34, 162, 220
             Art. 35(1), 220
             Art. 35(2), 221
             Art. 36(1), 220–1
             Art. 36(3), 224
             Art. 37(1), 220 n. 2
             Art. 37(2), 222
             Art. 38, 220, 222
             Chapter VII, 220, 224, 234, 240–9, 253–4, 286, 296
             Art. 39, 243, 249
             Art. 41, 243, 245
             Art. 42, 243–4
             Art. 43, 244
             Art. 51, 259
             Chapter VIII, 278, 281
             Arts. 52–4, 279
             Art. 52(2), 220
             Art. 53(1), 280
             Art. 96(1), 235
             Art. 98, 221, 225, 230
             Art. 99, 220–1, 225, 227, 229, 261, 299

-
- Art. 103, 248
  - Statute of the International Court of Justice
  - Art. 1, 231 n. 28
  - Art. 2, 135
  - Art. 9, 134–5
  - Art. 17, 135, 182
  - Art. 24, 135
  - Arts. 26–9, 137
  - Art. 36(2), 76, 117–18, 120–1, 277
  - Art. 36(5), 121–2
  - Art. 36(6), 119
  - Art. 37(5), 121–2
  - Art. 38(1), 145
  - Art. 38(2), 148
  - Art. 41, 124–7, 130, 234–5, 247–8
  - Art. 50, 144
  - Art. 53, 159–60, 178
  - Art. 59, 129
  - Art. 60, 130–1, 159
  - Art. 61, 130, 131
  - Art. 62, 127–30, 203
  - Art. 63, 127, 203
  - Art 65(1), 235
  - Art. 80, 131
  - 1946 Trusteeship Agreement for the Cameroons, 11
  - 1947 General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, 211–35
  - Inter-American Treaty of Reciprocal Assistance (Rio Treaty), 259–60, 269
  - Treaty of Peace with Italy, 63
  - Treaties of Peace with Bulgaria, Hungary and Rumania, 88
  - United Nations Headquarters Agreement, 156 n. 35
  - 1948 American Treaty on Pacific Settlement (Pact of Bogotá), 70, 89, 117, 119, 260, 275–8
  - Charter of Bogotá, 260
  - Genocide Convention, 120, 125, 304
  - 1949 Revised General Act for the Pacific Settlement of International Disputes, 60
  - 1950 European Convention on Human Rights, 71, 171, 258
  - 1953 Agreement on German External Debts, 112
  - 1956 Treaty of Friendship, Commerce and Navigation (United States–Nicaragua), 120
  - 1957 Washington Agreement (Honduras–Nicaragua), 265
  - European Convention for the Peaceful Settlement of Disputes, 70, 89, 117

-
- 1958 Geneva Convention on Fishing and Conservation of the Living Resources of the High Seas, 179–80
Geneva Conventions on the Law of the Sea, 169
- 1959 Antarctic Treaty, 13, 14
- 1960 Indus Waters Treaty, 36
- 1961 Exchange of Notes concerning Fishing (United Kingdom–Iceland), 12, 14, 23
Exchange of Notes concerning the Red Crusader Incident (United Kingdom–Denmark), 49
- 1963 Charter of the Organization of African Unity, 70
Vienna Convention on Consular Relations, 117, 146
- 1964 Protocol of the Commission of Mediation, Conciliation and Arbitration of the OAU, 70, 261
- 1965 Treaty of Conciliation, Judicial Settlement and Arbitration (United Kingdom–Switzerland), 68
Convention on the Settlement of Investment Disputes between States and Nationals of Other States, 108–9
Convention on Transit Trade of Land-Locked Countries, 18
International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination, 71 n. 35, 136 n. 59
- 1966 Concession Agreement between BP and Libya, 96
International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, 71 n. 35
UN Covenants on Human Rights, 77 n. 57
- 1969 American Convention on Human Rights, 71
Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties, 72, 175
- 1971 Agreement for Arbitration of the Beagle Channel Dispute, 91, 94
Montreal Convention for the Suppression of Unlawful Acts against the Safety of Civil Aviation, 17
- 1972 Charter of the Islamic Conference, 263
- 1975 Algiers Accord (Iran–Iraq), 36, 39
Arbitration Agreement concerning Delimitation of the Continental Shelf (United Kingdom–France), 315–19
Brussels Communiqué (Greece–Turkey), 15, 16
Convention on the Representation of States in their Relations with International Organizations of a Universal Character, 72 n. 3, 175 n. 21
Helsinki Agreement, 75, 77
Statute of the River Uruguay, 6, 126
- 1976 Special Agreement concerning Delimitation of the Continental Shelf (Libya–Malta), 157
- 1977 Air Services Agreement, ‘Bermuda II’ (United Kingdom–United States), 90, 97

- Special Agreement concerning Delimitation of the Continental Shelf (Tunisia–Libya), 92 n. 31, 149, 159
- Treaty between Czechoslovakia and Hungary concerning the Construction and Operation of the Gabčíkovo-Nagymaros System of Locks, 146
- 1978 Camp David Agreements, 253
- Torres Strait Treaty, 12
- Vienna Convention on Succession of States in respect of Treaties, 24, 72
- 1979 Special Agreement concerning Delimitation of the Maritime Boundary in the Gulf of Maine Area, 21, 150, 158–9
- 1981 African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights, 71 n. 35
- Agreement on the Continental Shelf between Iceland and Jan Mayen, 65
- Declaration of Algeria concerning the Settlement of Claims by the United States and Iran, 87, 94, 96
- Treaty Establishing the Organization of Eastern Caribbean States, 70
- 1982 Antitrust Cooperation Agreement (United States–Australia), 3 n. 3
- Law of the Sea Convention, 5, 56, 74, 89, 112, 113, 162, 201, 215, 216, 285, 306
- Art. 187, 184
- Art. 188, 185
- Art. 189, 185
- Art. 190, 185 n. 47
- Art. 191, 186 n. 49
- Art. 279, 168
- Art. 280, 168
- Art. 281, 113, 169, 179, 193
- Art. 282, 169, 193
- Art. 283, 18, 19, 168–9
- Art. 284, 174 n. 19
- Art. 287, 170, 191
- Art. 288, 170, 191
- Art. 289, 170
- Art. 290, 171, 179, 184 n. 46, 188
- Art. 290(1), 179
- Art. 290(5), 188
- Art. 292, 171, 188–9
- Art. 293, 171, 185
- Art. 294, 171
- Art. 295, 171
- Art. 297, 172–4

- Art. 298, 172–4, 190
 Art. 298(3), 173
 Art. 299, 174
 Art. 308, 186
 Annex V, 175
 Annex VI, 181, 184–6
 Annex VII, 113, 177–9, 188, 306
 Annex VIII, 180
 Part XI, 169, 184, 186
- 1983 Special Agreement concerning Frontier Delimitation (Upper Volta/Burkina Faso–Mali), 148–9, 158
 Special Agreement concerning Maritime Boundary Delimitation (Guinea–Guinea-Bissau), 87, 102
- 1984 Treaty of Peace and Friendship (Argentina–Chile), 35 n. 19
 Agreement concerning the Assets of the East African Community, 64–9
- 1985 Protocol of Cartagena de Indias, 261 n. 11
 Vienna Convention for the Protection of the Ozone Layer, 73
- 1986 Agreement to Arbitrate the Boundary Dispute concerning the Taba Beachfront, 70, 92, 101
 Single European Act, 258
- 1987 Esquipulas II Accord, 268
 Montreal Protocol to the Vienna Convention for the Protection of the Ozone Layer, 78–9
- 1990 Agreement establishing an Interim Reciprocal Information and Consultation System (Argentina–United Kingdom), 5, 310–12
 Agreement to Settle Dispute concerning Compensation for the Deaths of Letelier and Moffitt (Chile–United States), 52
- 1991 Treaty Establishing the African Economic Community, 262
- 1992 Convention for the Protection of the Marine Environment of the North-East Atlantic (OSPAR Convention), 95, 112
 Convention on Biological Diversity, 73, 113 n. 88
 Convention on the Protection and Use of Transboundary Watercourses and Lakes, 113 n. 88
 Convention on the Transboundary Effects of Industrial Accidents, 113 n. 88
 Framework Convention on Climate Change, 73
 North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA), 108, 216–17
 Protocol of Washington, 260
 Stockholm Convention on Conciliation and Arbitration within the CSCE, 77–8, 113, 262
 Treaty of Maastricht, 258
- 1993 Commonwealth of Independent States Charter, 259 n. 4
 Commonwealth of Independent States Treaty on Creation of Economic Union, 259 n. 4

-
- Protocol to the 1976 Convention on the Protection of the Rhine against Pollution by Chlorides, 112
- Special Agreement concerning the Gabčíkovo-Nagymaros Project (Hungary–Slovak Republic), 159, 319–21
- 1994 Agreement establishing the World Trade Organization, 194–218, 306
- Antidumping Agreement, 209
- SPS Agreement, 205
- TRIPS Agreement, 205
- Agreement relating to the Implementation of Part XI of the 1982 Law of the Sea Convention, 186–7
- Convention to Combat Desertification, 73
- 1995 Dayton Peace Agreement, 30, 98
- Joint Declaration on Cooperation over Offshore Activities in the South West Atlantic (Argentina–United Kingdom), 13 n. 25
- Straddling Stocks Agreement, 192
- 1996 Special Agreement concerning the Kasikili/Sedudu Island Dispute (Botswana–Namibia), 148
- 1997 Convention on the Law of the Non-Navigational Uses of International Watercourses, 73–4
- Kyoto Protocol, 79
- Treaty of Amsterdam, 258
- 1998 Aarhus Convention, 79
- 1999 International Convention for the Suppression of the Financing of International Terrorism, 112
- 2000 Cartagena Protocol on Biosafety, 79
- 2001 Constitutive Act of the African Union, 257, 262
- 2002 Special Agreement concerning a Boundary Dispute (Benin–Niger), 159
- 2006 Southern Indian Ocean Fisheries Agreement, 192
- 2008 Protocol on the Statute of the African Court of Justice and Human Rights, 262
- 2009 Lisbon Treaty, 258

Abbreviations

AFDI	Annuaire Français de Droit International
AJIL	American Journal of International Law
Annuaire	Annuaire de l'Institut de Droit International
Archiv des Völk.	Archiv des Völkerrechts
Aust. Year Book Int. L.	Australian Year Book of International Law
BYBIL	British Year Book of International Law
Calif. Western Int. LJ	California Western International Law Journal
Can. Bar Rev.	Canadian Bar Review
Can. Yearbook Int. L.	Canadian Yearbook of International Law
CML Rev.	Common Market Law Review
Colum. J. Transnat. L.	Columbia Journal of Transnational Law
Denver J. Int. L. & Pol.	Denver Journal of International Law and Policy
Ga J. Int. & Comp. L.	Georgia Journal of International and Comparative Law
Global Community YBILJ	Global Community Yearbook of International Law and Jurisprudence
Grotius Soc. Trans.	Grotius Society Transactions
Harv. Int. LJ	Harvard International Law Journal
ICLQ	International and Comparative Law Quarterly
ILM	International Legal Materials
ILQ	International Law Quarterly
ILR	International Law Reports
Ind. J. Int. L.	Indian Journal of International Law
Int. Org.	International Organization
Int. Rel.	International Relations
Iran-US CTR	Iran-United States Claims Tribunal Reports
Israel L. Rev.	Israel Law Review
J. World Trade	Journal of World Trade
Leiden JIL	Leiden Journal of International Law
Melbourne JIL	Melbourne Journal of International Law
Mich. L. Rev.	Michigan Law Review
NTIR	Nederlands tijdschrift voor internationaal recht
NYUJ Int. L. & Politics	New York University Journal of International Law and Politics

Ocean Devel. & Int. L.	Ocean Development and International Law
Rev. Egypt. Droit Int.	Revue Egyptienne de Droit International
RGDIP	Revue Générale de Droit International Public
RIAA	Reports of International Arbitral Awards
San Diego L. Rev.	San Diego Law Review
Syr. J. Int. L. & Com.	Syracuse Journal of International Law and Commerce
U. Chi. L. Rev.	University of Chicago Law Review
U. Toronto Fac. L. Rev.	University of Toronto Faculty of Law Review
U. Toronto LJ	University of Toronto Law Journal
UKTS	United Kingdom Treaty Series
UNTS	United Nations Treaty Series
Va JIL	Virginia Journal of International Law
YBIEL	Yearbook of International Environmental Law
Yearbook of WA	Yearbook of World Affairs

Websites

African Union, www.africa-union.org
Arab League, www.leagueofarabstates.org
Council of Europe, www.coe.int
Economic Community of West African States, www.ecowas.int
European Court of Human Rights, www.echr.coe.int
European Court of Justice, www.curia.eu.int
Inter-American Court of Human Rights, www.corteidh.or.cr
International Centre for the Settlement of Investment Disputes,
www.icsid.org
International Court of Justice, www.icj-cij.org
International Criminal Court, www.un.org/law/icc/
International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda, www.icttr.org
International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia,
www.un.org/icty/
International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea, www.itlos.org
Iran–United States Claims Tribunal, www.iusct.org
North American Free Trade Agreement Secretariat,
www.nafta-sec-alena.org
Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe, www.osce.org
Organization of American States, www.oas.org
Organization of the Islamic Conference, www.oic-oci.org
Permanent Court of Arbitration, www.pca-cpa.org
United Nations, www.un.org
UN Department of Peacekeeping, www.un.org/Depts/dpko/
UN General Assembly, www.un.org/ga/
UN Security Council Information, www.un.org/Docs/scinfo.htm
World Trade Organization, www.wto.org

Negotiation

A dispute may be defined as a specific disagreement concerning a matter of fact, law or policy in which a claim or assertion of one party is met with refusal, counter-claim or denial by another. In the broadest sense, an international dispute can be said to exist whenever such a disagreement involves governments, institutions, juristic persons (corporations) or private individuals in different parts of the world. However, the disputes with which the present work is primarily concerned are those in which the parties are two or more of the nearly 200 or so sovereign states into which the world is currently divided.

Disputes are an inevitable part of international relations, just as disputes between individuals are inevitable in domestic relations. Like individuals, states often want the same thing in a situation where there is not enough of it to go round. Moreover, just as people can disagree about the way to use a river, a piece of land or a sum of money, states frequently want to do different things, but their claims are incompatible. Admittedly, one side may change its position, extra resources may be found, or on looking further into the issue it may turn out that everyone can be satisfied after all. But no one imagines that these possibilities can eliminate all domestic disputes and they certainly cannot be relied on internationally. Disputes, whether between states, neighbours, or brothers and sisters, must therefore be accepted as a regular part of human relations and the problem is what to do about them.

A basic requirement is a commitment from those who are likely to become involved, that is to say, from everyone, that disputes will only be pursued by peaceful means. Within states this principle was established at an early stage and laws and institutions were set up to prohibit self-help and to enable disputes to be settled without disruption of the social order. On the international plane, where initially the matter was regarded as less important, equivalent arrangements have been slower to develop. The emergence of international law, which in its modern form can be dated from the seventeenth century, was accompanied by neither the creation of a world government, nor a renunciation of the use of force by states. In 1945, however, with the consequences of the unbridled pursuit of national objectives still fresh in the memory, the founder members of the United Nations agreed in Article 2(3) of the Charter to 'settle their international disputes by peaceful means in such a manner that international peace and security, and justice, are not endangered'. What these peaceful means are and how they are used by states are the subject of this book.

A General Assembly resolution of 1970, after quoting Article 2(3), proclaims:

States shall accordingly seek early and just settlement of their international disputes by negotiation, inquiry, mediation, conciliation, arbitration, judicial settlement, resort to regional agencies or arrangements or other peaceful means of their choice.<sup>1</sup>

In this provision, which is modelled on Article 33(1) of the Charter, the various methods of peaceful settlement are not set out in any order of priority, but the first mentioned, negotiation, is the principal means of handling all international disputes.<sup>2</sup> In fact in practice, negotiation is employed more frequently than all the other methods put together. Often, indeed, negotiation is the only means employed, not just because it is always the first to be tried and is often successful, but also because states may believe its advantages to be so great as to rule out the use of other methods, even in situations where the chances of a negotiated settlement are slight. On the occasions when another method is used, negotiation is not displaced, but directed towards instrumental issues, for example the terms of reference for an inquiry or conciliation commission or the arrangements for implementing an arbitral decision.

Thus, in one form or another, negotiation has a vital part in international disputes. But negotiation is more than a possible means of settling differences, it is also a technique for preventing them from arising. Since prevention is always better than cure, this form of negotiation, known as 'consultation', is a convenient place to begin.

Consultation

When a government anticipates that a decision or a proposed course of action may harm another state, discussions with the affected party can provide a way of heading off a dispute by creating an opportunity for <sup>1</sup> General Assembly Declaration on Principles of International Law Concerning Friendly Relations and Cooperation among States in Accordance with the Charter of the United Nations, GA Res. 2625 (XXV), 24 October 1970. The resolution was adopted by the General Assembly without a vote.

<sup>2</sup> For discussion of the meaning and significance of negotiation, see C. M. H. Waldock (ed.), International Disputes: The Legal Aspects, London, 1972, Chapter 2A (H. Darwin); F. S. Northedge and M. D. Donelan, International Disputes: The Political Aspects, London, 1971, Chapter 12; P. J. I. M. De Waart, The Element of Negotiation in the Pacific Settlement of Disputes between States, The Hague, 1973; United Nations, Handbook on the Peaceful Settlement of Disputes between States, New York, 1992, Chapter 2A; B. Starkey, M. A. Boyer and J. Wilkenfield, Negotiating a Complex World, Lanham, MD, 1999; I. W. Zartman and J. Z. Rubin (eds.), Power and Negotiation, Ann Arbor, MI, 2000; and V. A. Kremenyuk (ed.), International Negotiation, 2nd edn, San Francisco, 2002.

adjustment and accommodation. Quite minor modifications to its plans, of no importance to the state taking the decision, may be all that is required to avoid trouble, yet may only be recognised if the other side is given a chance to point them out. The particular value of consultation is that it supplies this useful information at the most appropriate time – before anything has been done. For it is far easier to make the necessary modifications at the decision-making stage, rather than later, when exactly the same action may seem like capitulation to foreign pressure, or be seized on by critics as a sacrifice of domestic interests.

A good example of the value of consultation is provided by the practice of the United States and Canada in antitrust proceedings. Writing of the procedure employed in such cases, a commentator has noted that:

While it is true that antitrust officials of one state might flatly refuse to alter a course of action in any way, it has often been the case that officials have been persuaded to modify their plans somewhat. After consultation, it may be agreed to shape an indictment in a less offensive manner, to change the ground rules of an investigation so as to require only ‘voluntary’ testimony from witnesses, or that officials of the government initiating an investigation or action will keep their antitrust counterparts informed of progress in the case and allow them to voice their concerns.<sup>3</sup>

This policy of co-operation, developed through a series of bilateral understandings, has been incorporated in an agreement providing for co-ordination with regard to both the competition laws and the deceptive marketing practices laws of the two states.

Consultation should be distinguished from two related ways of taking foreign susceptibilities into account: notification and the obtaining of prior consent. Suppose state A decides to notify state B of imminent action likely to affect B’s interests, or, as will sometimes be the case, is obliged to do so as a legal duty. Such advanced warning gives B time to consider its response, which may be to make representations to A, and in any case avoids the abrasive impact of what might otherwise be regarded as an attempt to present B with a fait accompli. In these ways notification can make a modest contribution to dispute avoidance, though naturally B is likely to regard notification alone as a poor substitute for the chance to negotiate and influence the decision that consultation can provide.

Obtaining the consent of the other state, which again may sometimes be a legal obligation, lies at the opposite pole. Here, the affected state enjoys a veto over the proposed action. This is clearly an extremely important power and its exceptional nature was properly emphasised by the tribunal in the Lake Lanoux case:

<sup>3</sup> See B. R. Campbell, ‘The Canada–United States antitrust notification and consultation procedure’, (1978) 56 Can. Bar Rev. p. 459 at p. 468. On arrangements with Australia, see S. D. Ramsey, ‘The United States–Australian Antitrust Cooperation Agreement: A step in the right direction’, (1983–4) 24 Va JIL p. 127.

To admit that jurisdiction in a certain field can no longer be exercised except on the condition of, or by way of, an agreement between two States, is to place an essential restriction on the sovereignty of a State, and such restriction could only be admitted if there were clear and convincing evidence. Without doubt, international practice does reveal some special cases in which this hypothesis has become reality; thus, sometimes two States exercise conjointly jurisdiction over certain territories (joint ownership, co-imperium, or condominium); likewise, in certain international arrangements, the representatives of States exercise conjointly a certain jurisdiction in the name of those States or in the name of organizations. But these cases are exceptional, and international judicial decisions are slow to recognize their existence, especially when they impair the territorial sovereignty of a State, as would be the case in the present matter.<sup>4</sup>

In that case, Spain argued that, under both customary international law and treaties between the two states, France was under an obligation to obtain Spain's consent to the execution of works for the utilisation of certain waters in the Pyrenees for a hydroelectric scheme. The argument was rejected, but the tribunal went on to hold that France was under a duty to consult with Spain over projects that were likely to affect Spanish interests. Speaking of the nature of such obligatory consultations, the tribunal observed that:

one speaks, although often inaccurately, of the 'obligation of negotiating an agreement'. In reality, the engagements thus undertaken by States take very diverse forms and have a scope which varies according to the manner in which they are defined and according to the procedures intended for their execution; but the reality of the obligations thus undertaken is incontestable and sanctions can be applied in the event, for example, of an unjustified breaking off of the discussions, abnormal delays, disregard of the agreed procedures, systematic refusals to take into consideration adverse proposals or interests, and, more generally, in cases of violation of the rules of good faith.<sup>5</sup>

The role of consultation at different stages of a dispute may be seen in the Land Reclamation case.<sup>6</sup> Here, Malaysia brought proceedings against Singapore in response to reclamation activities being undertaken by the latter in the Straits of Johor, claiming that, as the activities were damaging <sup>4</sup> Lake Lanoux Arbitration (France v. Spain) (1957) 24 ILR p. 101 at p. 127. For discussion of the significance of the case, see J. G. Laylin and R. L. Bianchi, 'The role of adjudication in international river disputes: The Lake Lanoux case', (1959) 53 AJIL p. 30.

<sup>5</sup> 24 ILR p. 101 at p. 128. See further C. B. Bourne, 'Procedure in the development of international drainage basins: The duty to consult and negotiate', (1972) 10 Can. Yearbook Int. L. p. 212; and F. L. Kirgis, Prior Consultation in International Law, Charlottesville, VA, 1983, Chapter 2.

<sup>6</sup> Case Concerning Land Reclamation by Singapore in and around the Straits of Johor (Malaysia v. Singapore), Provisional Measures Order of 8 October 2003, 126 ILR p. 487; and see J. G. Merrills, 'New horizons for international adjudication', (2006) 6 Global Community YBILJ p. 47 at pp. 48–57.

and had been carried out without notification or consultation, Singapore had breached its obligations under the 1982 Law of the Sea Convention. Malaysia first sought provisional measures of protection from the International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea, and, in its order in 2003, the Tribunal put on record various undertakings from the parties with regard to the sharing of information and co-operation and required them to set up a group of independent experts to investigate the dispute and make recommendations. The group submitted its recommendations as requested, which provided the basis for an agreement settling the dispute which shortly afterwards was incorporated in an arbitration award on agreed terms. Under the settlement, the two states set up a joint mechanism designed to promote co-operation between them in the future. Thus, here consultation played a triple role, providing the basis for Malaysia's initial claim, then forming part of a transitional framework in the provisional measures order, and finally supplying a major component of the final settlement.

Another example of how the various ways of co-ordinating activities may be constructively combined is provided by the 'Interim Reciprocal Information and Consultation System', established in 1990 to regulate the movement of British and Argentine forces in the southwestern Atlantic.<sup>7</sup> The system involved the creation of a direct communication link with the aim of reducing the possibility of incidents and limiting their consequences if they occur. These facilities for consultation are supported by a provision under which at least twenty-five days' written notice is required for air and naval movements, and exercises of more than a certain size. This is a straightforward arrangement for notification, but two component features of the system are worth noticing. First, the notification provision is very specific as to the areas in which the obligation exists and the units to which it applies, and thereby minimises the possibilities for misunderstanding. Secondly, in relation to the most sensitive areas, those immediately off the parties' respective coasts, the notifying state must be informed immediately of any movement which 'might cause political or military difficulty' and 'mutual agreement will be necessary to proceed'. Here, therefore there is not only a right and a corresponding duty in respect of notification, but in some circumstances at least a need to obtain consent.

When arrangements for consultation are agreed upon in advance, questions may naturally arise as to whether they have been complied with if one party adopts measures to which the other takes exception. In the recent Pulp Mills on the River Uruguay case,<sup>8</sup> for example, Argentina took Uruguay to the

<sup>7</sup> Text in (1990) 29 ILM p. 1296; and see document A in the appendix below. For discussion, see M. Evans, 'The restoration of diplomatic relations between Argentina and the United Kingdom', (1991) 40 ICLQ p. 473 at pp. 478–80. For later developments, see R. R. Churchill, 'Falkland Islands: Maritime jurisdiction and co-operative arrangements with Argentina', (1997) 46 ICLQ p. 463.

<sup>8</sup> Pulp Mills on the River Uruguay (Argentina v. Uruguay), Judgment [2010] ICJ Rep.

International Court of Justice claiming, inter alia, that the latter had failed to notify and consult with Argentina before authorising the construction of two large pulp mills on the river which forms the international boundary. The obligations in question were contained in a bilateral treaty, the 1975 Statute of the River Uruguay, and, after examining the parties' conduct, the Court ruled that Uruguay had indeed breached its procedural obligations under the Statute. Argentina further claimed that Uruguay had violated its substantive obligations under the treaty, on account of the ecological impact of the pulp mills, but the Court found that this claim was not made out. Co-operative arrangements for utilising shared resources such as boundary rivers are increasingly common nowadays, and this case is a good illustration of their significance.

The advantages of consultation in bilateral relations are equally evident in matters which are of concern to a larger number of states. In a multilateral setting, consultation usually calls for an institutional structure of some kind. These can vary widely and do not have to be elaborate in order to be useful. The Antarctic Treaty system, for example, now operates on the basis of annual meetings but until recently had no permanent organs. It nevertheless exemplified the value of what has been called 'anticipatory co-operation' in addressing environmental and other issues in a special regional context. When closer regulation is needed, more complex institutional arrangements may be appropriate. Thus, the International Monetary Fund at one time required a member which had decided to change the par value of its currency to obtain the concurrence of the IMF before doing so. It is interesting to note that the term 'concurrence' was chosen 'to convey the idea of a presumption that was to be observed in favour of the member's proposal'.<sup>9</sup> Even so, the arrangement meant that extremely sensitive decisions were subject to international scrutiny. As a result, until the par value system was abandoned in 1978, the provision gave rise to considerable difficulties in practice.

Consultation between states is usually an ad hoc process and, except where reciprocity provides an incentive, as in the cases considered, has proved difficult to institutionalise. Obligatory consultation is bound to make decision-making slower and, depending on how the obligation is defined, may well constrain a government's options. In the Lake Lanoux case, the tribunal noted that it is a 'delicate matter' to decide whether such an obligation has been complied with, and held that, on the facts, France had done all that was required. If consultation is to be compulsory, however, the circumstances in which the obligation arises, as well as its content, need careful definition, or an allegation of a failure to carry out the agreed procedure may itself become a disputed issue.

Whether voluntary or compulsory, consultation is often easier to implement for executive than for legislative decision-making, since the former is usually less rigidly structured and more centralised. But legislative action can also cause international disputes; therefore procedures designed to achieve the same effect as consultation can have an equally useful part to play. Where states enjoy close relations, it may be possible to establish machinery for negotiating the co-ordination of legislative and administrative measures on matters of common interest. There are clear advantages in having uniform provisions on such matters as environmental protection, where states share a common frontier, or commerce, if trade is extensive. The difficulties of achieving such harmonisation are considerable, as the experience of the European Union has demonstrated, though, if uniformity cannot be achieved, compatibility of domestic provisions is a less ambitious alternative. In either case, the rewards in terms of dispute avoidance make the effort well worthwhile.

<sup>9</sup> See J. Gold, 'Prior consultation in international law', (1983–4) 24 Va JIL p. 729 at p. 737.

Another approach is to give the foreign state, or interested parties, an opportunity to participate in the domestic legislative process. Whether this is possible depends on the legislative machinery being sufficiently accessible to make it practicable and the parties' relations being good enough for such participation, which can easily be construed as foreign interference, to be acceptable. When these conditions are fulfilled, the example of North America – where United States gas importers have appeared before Canada's National Energy Board and Canadian officials have testified before Congressional committees – shows what can be achieved.<sup>10</sup>

Consultation, then, is a valuable way of avoiding international disputes. It is therefore not surprising to find that, in an increasingly interdependent world, the practice is growing. The record, however, is still very uneven. Although, as we shall see in Chapter 9, consultation is increasingly important in international trade, on other issues with the potential to cause disputes, such as access to resources and the protection of the environment, progress in developing procedures for consultation has been slower than is desirable. Similarly, while there is already consultation on a number of matters between Canada and the United States and in Europe, in other parts of the world the practice is scarcely known. Finally, when such procedures have been developed, there is, as we have noted, an important distinction between consultation as a matter of obligation and voluntary consultation which states prefer.

The author of a comprehensive review of consultation was compelled by the evidence of state practice to conclude that:

Despite the growth of prior consultation norms, it is unlikely that there will be any all-encompassing prior consultation duty in the foreseeable future. Thus, to the extent that formal procedural structures for prior consultation may be desirable, they should be tailored to recurring, relatively well defined, troublesome situations.<sup>11</sup>

<sup>10</sup> See Settlement of International Disputes between Canada and the USA (Report of the American and Canadian Bar Associations' Joint Working Group, 1979) for a description of this and other aspects of United States–Canadian co-operation.

The difficulty of persuading states to accept consultation procedures and the ways in which they operate when established are reminders of the fact that states are not entities, like individuals, but complex groupings of institutions and interests. If this is constantly borne in mind, the salient features of negotiation and the means of settlement discussed in later chapters will be much easier to understand.

Forms of negotiation

Negotiations between states are usually conducted through ‘normal diplomatic channels’, that is, by the respective foreign offices, or by diplomatic representatives, who in the case of complex negotiations may lead delegations including representatives of several interested departments of the governments concerned. As an alternative, if the subject matter is appropriate, negotiations may be carried out by what are termed the ‘competent authorities’ of each party, that is, by representatives of the particular ministry or department responsible for the matter in question – for example, between trade departments in the case of a commercial agreement, or between defence ministries in negotiations concerning weapons procurement. Where the competent authorities are subordinate bodies, they may be authorised to take negotiations as far as possible and to refer disagreements to a higher governmental level. One of the treaty provisions discussed in the Lake Lanoux dispute, for example, provided that:

The highest administrative authorities of the bordering Departments and Provinces will act in concert in the exercise of their right to make regulations for the general interest and to interpret or modify their regulations whenever the respective interests are at stake, and in case they cannot reach agreement, the dispute shall be submitted to the two Governments.<sup>12</sup>

In the case of a recurrent problem or a situation requiring continuous supervision, states may decide to institutionalise negotiations by creating what is termed a mixed or joint commission. Thus, neighbouring states commonly employ mixed commissions to deal with boundary delimitation, or other matters of common concern. The Soviet Union, for example, concluded treaties with a number of neighbouring states, providing for frontier disputes and incidents to be referred to mixed commissions with power to decide minor disputes and to investigate other cases, before referring them for settlement through diplomatic channels.<sup>13</sup>

<sup>11</sup> Kirgis, Prior Consultation, p. 375. See also I. W. Zartman (ed.), Preventive Negotiation, Lanham, MD, 2001.

<sup>12</sup> See the Additional Act to the three Treaties of Bayonne (1866), Article 16, in (1957) 24 ILR p. 104.

Mixed commissions usually consist of an equal number of representatives of both parties, and may be given either a broad brief of indefinite duration, or the task of dealing with a specific problem. An outstanding example of a commission of the first type is provided by the Canadian–United States International Joint Commission, which, since its creation in 1909, has dealt with a large number of issues, including industrial development, air pollution and a variety of questions concerning boundary waters.<sup>14</sup>

An illustration of the different functions that may be assigned to ad hoc commissions is to be found in the Lake Lanoux dispute. After being considered by the International Commission for the Pyrenees, a mixed commission established as long ago as 1875, the matter was referred to a Franco-Spanish Commission of Engineers, set up in 1949 to examine the technical aspects of the dispute. When the Commission of Engineers was unable to agree, France and Spain created a special mixed commission with the task of formulating proposals for the utilisation of Lake Lanoux and submitting them to the two governments for consideration. It was only when this commission was also unable to agree that the parties decided to refer the case to arbitration, though not before France had put forward (unsuccessfully) the idea of a fourth mixed commission which would have had the function of supervising execution of the water-diversion scheme and monitoring its day-to-day operation.

If negotiation through established machinery proves unproductive, ‘summit discussions’ between heads of state or foreign ministers may be used in an attempt to break the deadlock. Though the value of such conspicuous means of negotiation should not be exaggerated, summit diplomacy may facilitate agreement by enabling official bureaucracies to be bypassed to some extent, while providing an incentive to agree in the form of enhanced prestige for the leaders concerned. It should be noted, however, that summit diplomacy is usually the culmination of a great deal of conventional negotiation, and in some cases at least reflects nothing more than a desire to make political capital out of an agreement that is already assured.

A disadvantage of summit meetings is that, unlike conventional negotiations, they take place amid a glare of publicity and so generate expectations which may be hard to fulfil. The idea that a meeting between world leaders has failed unless it produces a new agreement of some kind is scarcely realistic yet is epitomised by the mixture of hope and dread with which meetings between the leaders of the United States and the Soviet Union used to be surrounded. In an attempt to change this unhealthy atmosphere, in November 1989 President George H. Bush described his forthcoming meeting with Mr Gorbachev as an 'interim informal meeting' and emphasised that there would be no specific agenda.<sup>15</sup> It is doubtful if such attempts to damp down expectations can ever be wholly successful and even less likely that politicians would wish the media to treat their exploits on the international stage with indifference. However, as the solution of international problems is primarily a matter of working patiently with regular contact at all levels, there is much to be said for attempting to remove the unique aura of summit meetings and encouraging them to be seen instead as a regular channel of communication.

<sup>13</sup> For details, see N. Bar-Yaacov, The Handling of International Disputes by Means of Inquiry, Oxford, 1974, pp. 117–19.

<sup>14</sup> For an excellent survey of the work of the International Joint Commission, see M. Cohen, ‘The regime of boundary waters – The Canadian–United States experience’, (1975) 146 Hague Recueil des Cours p. 219 (with bibliography). For a review of another commission, see L. C. Wilson, ‘The settlement of boundary disputes: Mexico, the United States and the International Boundary Commission’, (1980) 29 ICLQ p. 38.

The public aspect of negotiations which is exemplified in summit diplomacy is also prominent in the activity of international organisations. In the United Nations General Assembly and similar bodies, states can, if they choose, conduct diplomatic exchanges in the full glare of international attention. This is undoubtedly a useful way of letting off steam and, more constructively, of engaging the attention of outside states which may have something to contribute to the solution of a dispute. It has the disadvantage, however, that so visible a performance may encourage the striking of attitudes which are at once both unrealistic and difficult to abandon. It is therefore probable that, for states with a serious interest in negotiating a settlement, the many opportunities for informal contact which international organisations provide are more useful than the dramatic confrontations of public debate.

Whether discussion of a dispute in an international organisation can be regarded as equivalent to traditional diplomatic negotiation is an issue which may also have legal implications. In the South West Africa cases (1962),<sup>16</sup> one of South Africa's preliminary objections was that any dispute between itself and the applicants, Ethiopia and Liberia, fell outside the terms of the International Court's jurisdiction (which rested on Article 7 of the Mandate), because it had not been shown that the dispute was one which could not be settled by negotiation. The Court rejected the objection on the ground that extensive discussions in the United Nations on the question of South West Africa, in which South Africa and the applicants had been involved, constituted negotiations in respect of the dispute and the fact that those discussions had ended in deadlock indicated that the dispute could not be settled by negotiation.

In their joint dissenting opinion, Judges Spender and Fitzmaurice disagreed. In their view, what had occurred in the United Nations did not amount to negotiation within Article 7. Those discussions, they argued, failed to satisfy the requirements of Article 7 because such discussions had not been directed to the alleged dispute between the applicants and South Africa, merely to points of disagreement between the Assembly and South Africa. Even if this had not been so, proceedings within an international organisation could never be regarded as a substitute for direct negotiations between the parties because:

<sup>15</sup> See L. Freedman, 'Just two men in a boat', The Independent, 3 November 1989, p. 19.

<sup>16</sup> South West Africa, Preliminary Objections, Judgment, [1962] ICJ Rep. p. 319.

a 'negotiation' confined to the floor of an international Assembly, consisting of allegations of Members, resolutions of the Assembly and actions taken by the Assembly pursuant thereto, denial of allegations, refusal to comply with resolutions or to respond to action taken thereunder, cannot be enough to justify the Court in holding that the dispute 'cannot' be settled by negotiation, when no direct diplomatic interchanges have ever taken place between the parties, and therefore no attempt at settlement has been made at the statal and diplomatic level.<sup>17</sup>

The Northern Cameroons case<sup>18</sup> raised a very similar issue. Article 19 of the Trusteeship Agreement for the Cameroons, like Article 7 of the Mandate, covered only disputes incapable of settlement by negotiation. The International Court, which decided the case on other grounds, did not discuss this aspect of Article 19. Fitzmaurice, however, examining the requirement in light of his opinion in the South West Africa cases, observed that 'negotiation' did not mean 'a couple of states arguing with each other across the floor of an international assembly, or circulating statements of their complaints or contentions to its member states. That is disputation, not negotiation',<sup>19</sup> and repeated his view that direct negotiations were essential. Finding that the only 'negotiations' in the present case had taken the form of proceedings in the General Assembly, Fitzmaurice upheld a British objection that the requirements of Article 19 had not been satisfied.

The issue here is clearly one that is unavoidable. International organisations, as already noted, provide an attractive forum for the airing of certain types of international disputes. How far it is appropriate to regard such exchanges as an alternative to conventional negotiation is a question which judicial institutions must expect to resolve as part of the larger process of settling their relationship with their political counterparts.

Substantive aspects of negotiation

For a negotiated settlement to be possible, the parties must believe that the benefits of an agreement outweigh the losses. If their interests are diametrically opposed, an arrangement which would require one side to yield all or most of its position is therefore unlikely to be acceptable. This appears

<sup>17</sup> Ibid., p. 562. <sup>18</sup> Northern Cameroons, Judgment, [1963] ICJ Rep. p. 15.

<sup>19</sup> Ibid., p. 123.