

CHINESE MIGRATION AND ECONOMIC RELATIONS WITH EUROPE

Edited by Marco Sanfilippo and Agnieszka Weinar

ROUTLEDGE

Chinese Migration and Economic Relations with Europe

This book explores how far existing networks of overseas Chinese and new flows of migrants act as drivers of economic relations between China and the host countries. It considers migration, trade, the flow of capital and foreign direct investment, includes both skilled and unskilled migrants and outlines the complex different waves of migration flows. It includes detailed case studies, based on extensive original research, on the position in a range of European countries and concludes with policy-oriented analysis and with an overall assessment of how far the Chinese diaspora matters in stimulating increased bilateral economic activity and stronger bilateral economic relationships.

Marco Sanfilippo is Assistant Professor at the Institute of Development Policy and Management, University of Antwerp, Belgium.

Agnieszka Weinara is a Research Fellow at the European University Institute, Florence, Italy.

After receiving her PhD in Economics at the EUI in 1990, she was a Schuman Fellow of the European Commission at CEPS, Assistant Professor at the Rotterdam School of Management, Senior Research Fellow at ICER (Turin) and Academic Visitor and consultant of the European Commission. She was also Visiting Professor at the Universities of Aveiro, Pisa, Roma (II) and Victoria, BC, Canada, and Católica, Lisbon. Her publications include several co-authored and edited books on issues such as the single market, competition policy and migration policies and articles on the Lisbon and Europe 2020 strategies, environmental policy and economic sustainability.

Gabi Dei Ottati is Professor of Applied Economics in the Department of Economics and Management at the University of Florence (Italy) and Professor of Local Development in the Doctorate in Economics at the University of Florence. Her main research interests focus on industrial organization and especially on the industrial district model of organization and the role of industrial districts in the Italian economy. On these topics, Gabi Dei Ottati has published several books and more than 50 articles, many of them in international journals such as Cambridge Journal of Economics and European Planning Studies. In more recent years, her research activity has extended to immigrant businesses in Italian industrial districts and in particular to Chinese entrepreneurs in Prato.

Pawel Kaczmarczyk is Deputy Director of the Centre of Migration Research at the University of Warsaw and Assistant Professor at the Faculty of Economic Sciences, University of Warsaw. He is a fellow at IZA, the Institute for the Study of Labor in Bonn, Germany, and with TFMI, the Transcontinental Forum on Migration and Integration. He also serves as a SOPEMI correspondent for Poland at the OECD. His research focuses on the drivers and consequences of labor migration, highly skilled mobility, the methodology of migration research, labor economics, population economics, demography, international economics and migration policy.

Frank N. Pieke studied cultural anthropology and Chinese studies at the University of Amsterdam and the University of California, Berkeley, where he received his PhD in 1992. After lectureships in Leiden and Oxford, he was appointed chair professor in modern China studies at Leiden University in 2010. Pieke is coordinator of the Leiden University research profile area Asian Modernities and Traditions and director of the University's Modern East Asia Research Centre. Pieke's work on contemporary Chinese society and politics focuses on the changing role of the Chinese Communist Party. His most recent book is The Good Communist: Elite Training and State Building in Today's China (Cambridge University Press, 2009). Pieke's other specialization is Chinese international migration. In 2004, he published Transnational Chinese: Fujianese Migrants in Europe with Stanford University Press. Pieke's current research revolves around foreign immigrant groups in China.

Marco Sanfilippo holds a PhD in Development Economics at the University of Florence, Italy. Currently, he is an Assistant Professor at the University of Antwerp, Belgium, and an Associate Fellow at the Italian Institute of International Affairs. Before joining Antwerp, he worked for some years as a research fellow at the European University Institute in Florence and worked/consulted for the Bank of Finland, University of Eastern Piedmont, UNICEF, UNIDO and UNU-Wider, among the others. His main research interests are in the field of development and international economics, focusing in particular on the globalization of Chinese firms and the implications for recipient countries, with a geographic focus on Europe and Africa.

Miguel Santos Neves holds a PhD from the London School of Economics and Political Science (LSE). Between 1995 and 2013, he was Director of the Asia Programme and the Migrations Programme at the Institute of International and Strategic Studies in Portugal (IEEI). Previous jobs include positions as Economic Counselor at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in Portugal, Adviser to the Governor of Macao and expert to the Sino-Portuguese Joint Liaison Group on Macao. He has coordinated several research projects on EU–China relations looking at both formal track I and informal channels, in particular focusing on the dynamics and role of the Chinese business community in Portugal, its ties both with other communities in the EU and with China and on the paradiplomacy of Chinese provinces and EU regions. He has published books and articles on these topics in various international journals.

Yun Schüler-Zhou is Associate Research Fellow at the German Institute of Global and Area Studies (GIGA), Institute of Asian Studies. She received her PhD in Business Administration from the University of Hamburg. Her research interests focus on the internationalization of Chinese enterprises and the economic relations between China and the EU. She also works as an independent researcher and consultant with a focus on Chinese investment in the EU.

Margot Schüller is Senior Research Fellow at the German Institute of Global and Area Studies (GIGA) and Deputy Director of the GIGA, Institute of Asian Studies. She is regular lecturer on Chinese and East Asian economics at universities in Germany and abroad, and frequently consults governmental and private institutions. Her current research focusses on China's economic development, especially the transition of the banking and state sector, and its economic relations with neighbouring countries in Asia, China's innovation system, and the globalization of Chinese companies.

Ekaterina Selezneva graduated from St. Petersburg State University (Russia) in 2001. In 2003, she was awarded a Master of Arts in Economics from the CORIPE Piemonte (Turin, Italy) and in 2005 from the European University in St. Petersburg (Russia). In January, 2009 Ms Selezneva completed her PhD studies at the University of Turin (Italy). Ms Selezneva's scientific interests include applied research related to labour market, gender economics topics and subjective well-being studies. Ekaterina works at the Department of Economics of the Institute for East and Southeast European Studies in Regensburg (Germany) since 2009.

Tabitha Speelman graduated with an MA in Chinese Studies from Leiden University in 2013.
